What is the Mission of Midwest Residential Energy Conference?

The Midwest Residential Energy Conference focuses on Building Science and issues related to home performance. The conference objective is to provide Continuing Education and updates on Building Codes, Tax Credits, Utility programs and new Technologies that benefit or affect the professions of Builders, Remodelers, Realtors, HVAC Contractors, HERS Raters, Building Analysts, Utility program managers and Utility Energy Advisors.

To meet this objective, the general sessions and education tracks feature national and regional speakers, relevant topics and essential CEU's. The Trade Show offers opportunities to showcase new products and services as well as networking and relationship building opportunities.

In 2017, we are Celebrating the 5th Anniversary as the first ever Regional RESNET Conference. Home Builders Association of Lexington and RESNET teamed up in 2013 to kick-off this informative educational event. We are proud to announce that the partnership continues to flourish as we approach the 9th Annual Midwest Residential Energy Conference. We hope you'll plan to attend.

The Trade Show

As an exhibitor, you will have an 8 X 10 draped booth space which includes an 8' draped and skirted table, two chairs a trash can, electric, internet access and a basic header sign.
